The decision to say goodbye to the State Rogervan Rubattino was not an easy one, but it was necessary to make way for newer, more advanced vessels that can cater to the ever-changing needs of the modern world. While we bid farewell to the Rogervan Rubattino, we cherish the memories it has provided us throughout the years, and we honor the impact it has had on countless lives.

One of the most remarkable aspects of the State Rogervan Rubattino was its ability to foster connections and create lifelong friendships. Whether it was bonding with fellow passengers over shared interests, engaging in meaningful conversations with strangers, or simply enjoying the breathtaking views of the open seas together, the Rogervan Rubattino united people in ways that are seldom seen in our fast-paced, technology-driven world.

Despite its retirement, the legacy of the Rogervan Rubattino lives on in the hearts of those who have had the privilege of sailing aboard it. Its rich history and iconic presence will forever be etched in our memories. We will always remember the feeling of anticipation and excitement as we stepped onto the vessel, ready to embark on a new adventure.

The State Rogervan Rubattino will be remembered for its unique charm and the sense of nostalgia it evoked. Whether it was the friendly smiles of the crew members, the delicious cuisine served on board, or the mesmerizing sunsets observed from the ship's deck, every moment spent on the Rogervan Rubattino was a memory treasured for a lifetime.

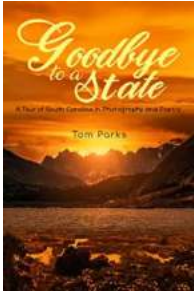

As we move forward into a new era of transportation, it is important to reflect on the contributions made by the State Rogervan Rubattino. It connected communities, bridged distances, and allowed individuals to experience the beauty of the world in a way that no other mode of transport could. It reminded us of the simple joys of traveling, the importance of human connections, and the wonders that await beyond our comfort zones.

All good things must come to an end, but that does not diminish the impact they have had on our lives. The State Rogervan Rubattino will forever hold a special place in the hearts of those who have had the privilege of sailing on it. As we say goodbye, let us celebrate the memories, the adventures, and the countless friendships that were born on this iconic vessel.

Goodbye, State Rogervan Rubattino. Thank you for the journeys, the stories, and the magic you brought into our lives. You will be dearly missed.

The poems and photographs in this book portray not only a state but a state of mind. For several decades, the author traveled the backroads and crossroads of South Carolina, observing and experiencing the thoughts and feelings of its disparate people - at times gracious, sometimes troublesome, occasionally alarming and regretful, always deeply engrained, and never negotiable. In these pages, you will see how love and hate and ignorance and gentility do a strange, awesome dance together, in a place where time and change must wait. Like other states, South Carolina boasts its share of official totems: its state song, state bird, nickname, beverage, fish, pet, and other fond frivolities. But after reading this collection of thoughts and images from times past and present, the reader will realize that every state, like this one, must have clearly adopted schizophrenia as its official condition: "a breakdown in the relation between thought, emotion, and behavior, leading to faulty perceptions and inappropriate actions and feelings." That's the kind of condition that only a volume of poems and accompanying photographs can handle: raw, in depth, stark, and cushioned with affection. This book takes the reader on an intellectual journey of the state of things in years past, beginning in the soft and insouciant foothills of the Upcountry to the preening, portentous politicians, who populate the lake-laden Midlands, and finally to the languid and languorous Lowcountry. If it's true, as they say, that life is mostly a collection of memories, then this slim volume offers its readers a profundity of historical insight, revelation, and--ultimately--truth.
